Talk together: What is one kind thing a grown-up can do for a dog today?

Choose kindness

A dog is eating. What should you do?

A. Reach for the bowl.
B. Give the dog quiet space and ask a grown-up.

You want to meet a new dog. What comes first?

A. Ask your grown-up and the dog’s caregiver.
B. Run up and give a big hug.

A dog goes to its bed to rest. What can you do?

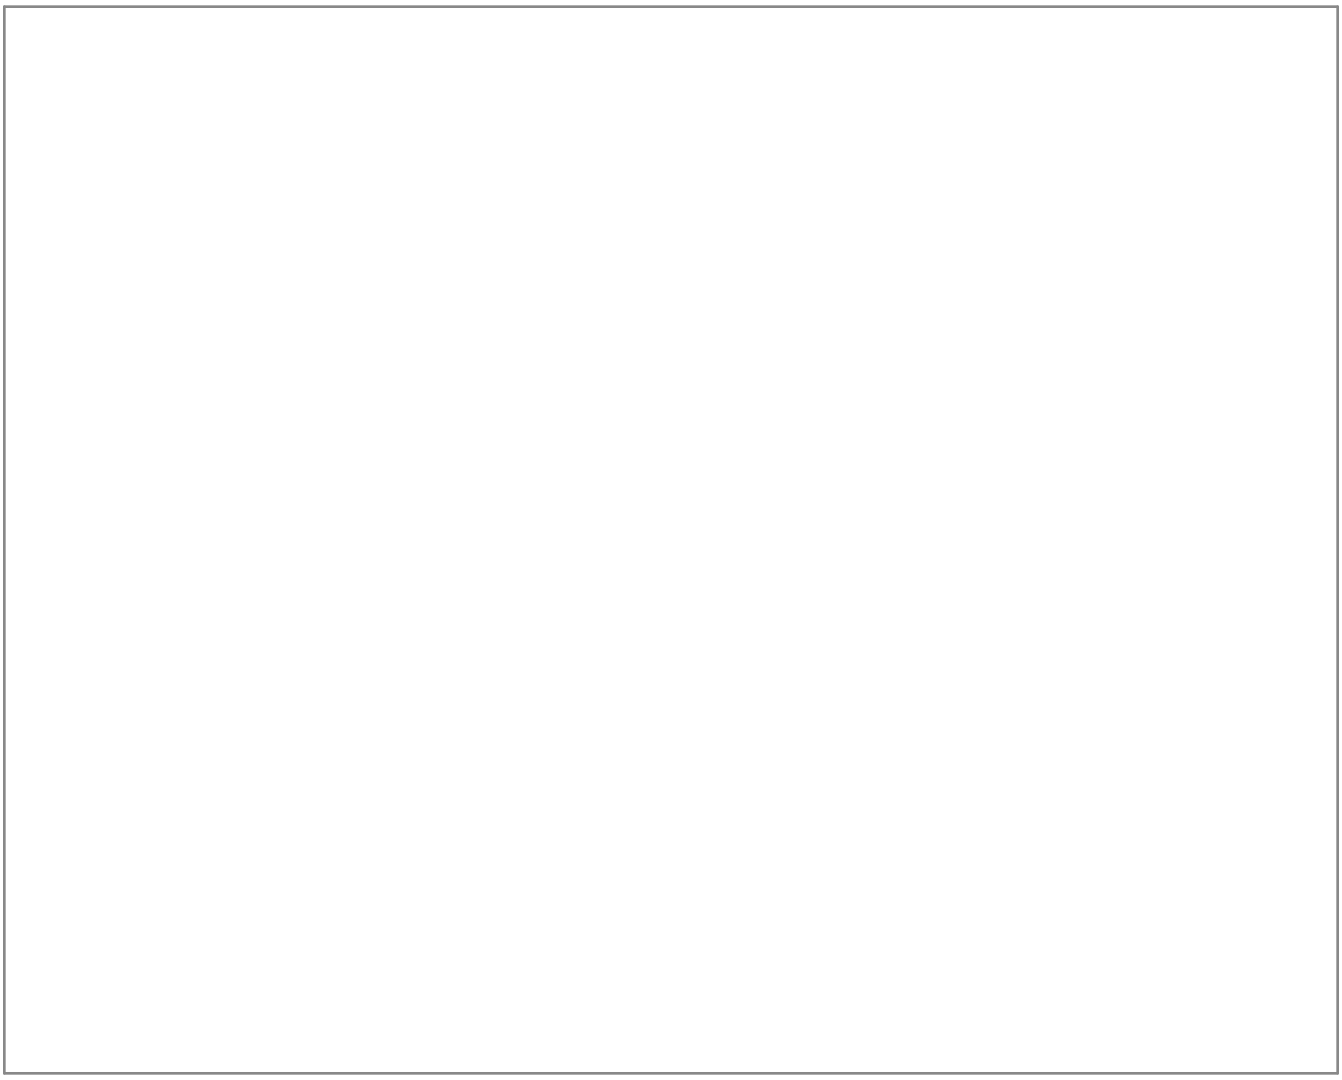

A. Let the dog rest and choose a quiet activity.
B. Follow and wake the dog.

Grown-ups always supervise children with dogs. No activity book can tell you that an individual dog is safe to approach.

Draw your dream dog

What ears, coat, size, and favorite activity would your pretend pup have? Real dogs have individual needs and personalities.

My pretend dog loves: _____

A grown-up would help care for my dog by: _____

Our kindness plan

Choose one activity with an adult. Adults remain responsible for all care.

☐ Make a paper sign reminding visitors to let the dog rest.

☐ Help a grown-up prepare a safe, quiet resting place.

☐ Draw a thank-you card for a rescue volunteer.

☐ Ask a grown-up to check the food and water bowls.

☐ Learn where to find help for a family or pet who needs food.

One thing I learned: _____

One question for my grown-up: _____

Grown-up answer page

Kind choices: 1-B, 2-A, 3-A. Give dogs space to eat and rest; ask before meeting a dog.
